Hi Emily,

Thank you for letting us know and for being available to do this. I am going to forward to you the meeting invitation. The room will be the Consulate Room. I'll be in the room to take you all up to the Green Room (backstage area) at 1pm.

I have billed this as an informal meet and greet. If there should be any topics Janet would like to discuss, please let me know. Each CEO or COO will only have one staffer with him, so there won't be too many people in the room. We will also have Nat Keohane, President of C2ES there and likely Amy Holm, Executive Director of The Climate Registry there too.

Kind regards,
Verena

Hi Both,

If we brokered an informal meeting with the CEOs and Janet and Andrew from 12:30-1 in a private room before the conference starts (Janet's remarks start at 1:15), would that work ok?

I am getting back to all the staff leads for the CEOs. They also like the idea of an informal meet and greet. If 12:30 works, I will send a meeting invitation for everyone's calendars.

Thanks!

Dear Andrea and Allison,

I hope you are both having a great week. I am so excited it get to see both of you soon, double treat! Thank you to both of you for your help in prepping Janet McCabe and Andrew Mayock for the Climate Leadership Conference on May 25. As I spoke with both of you separately, I wanted to give you a heads up here/see if there is interest in the following:

- Janet is scheduled for speaking at 1:15-1:30
- Andrew will follow her at 1:30pm
- Right after Andrew's remarks, we have having a panel of 3 utility sector leaders to talk about their efforts decarbonize their companies, drawing on clean energy for generation, advancing equity, and promoting electrification. They are Ralph Izzo, CEO of PSEG; Calvin Butler, COO of Exelon; and Pedro Pizarro, CEO of Edison International.
- One idea I'd like to float with you is to have Janet, Andrew, and the 3 CEOs huddle in the green room beforehand in a very informal, but intentional way. I suggest this because it is rare to get these leaders all in the same room at the same time. Better, we have a private room before the start of the conference we could reserve if they want to have an informal meet and greet to hear about any issues.
 - What do you think? Would Janet and/or Andrew be up for it? If this creates vastly more work, then we can keep it very informal and have them meet in the green room for 10 minutes before the event starts.
 - Andrea, Exelon was thinking that it "might be fun" to do a very short video clip that they would record of Calvin Butler interviewing Janet McCabe. I let them know that if they wanted this option they would have to come back with a description, provide their own videographer, and a better understanding of what they wanted to do. I let them know I would have to check with EPA to see if they were available for this. I will let you know ASAP.

Please let me know if you have any questions!

Best,
Verena

Hi Janet,

Tomorrow you will be delivering the keynote address to the Climate Leadership Conference. You will also be doing a meet and greet with 3 power sector CEOs (or COOs). I'm attaching a briefing memo and talking points for the meet greet that OAR put together and a full of show and talking points for the keynote address. As far as your keynote, Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP)

Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP) You will not take Q&As after your keynote. OAR and OP have weighed in on both your remarks and the prep materials for the meet and greet. I will be joining you at the event tomorrow and Andrew Mayock (and Allison Dennis!!) will be joining you for the meet and greet and he will do a fireside chat after your keynote. Emily has arranged for motorpool to take us to Pentagon City tomorrow. It will be like old times!

Please let me know if there's anything else you need from us.

Hi team!

Janet is speaking to the Climate Leadership Conference on Wednesday. She will also be meeting with Ralph Izzo, CEO of PSEG; Calvin Butler, COO of Exelon; and Pedro Pizarro, CEO of Edison International for a quick meet and greet prior to her remarks. I'm hopeful that you can help provide any TPs or background information that you think Janet might want to have in preparation for the conversation and the remarks. As far as the remarks, I'm planning to put a draft together this morning/early afternoon, so if it's easier to wait to see my draft and then drop in any updates please feel free to do so. I would appreciate any thoughts on the meet and greet in the meantime.

Isabel, can you send me your most recent set of climate talkers? I want to make sure I have the most recent.

Great!

We have a speaker/sponsor lounge that we are blocking off for purposes of the CEOs meeting with Andrew or Janet if they want from 12-1. They can meetup anytime during that time block (i.e. 12:40)
Alternatively, they can meet in the green room at 1pm, 15 minutes before folks go onstage.

Let me check in with the CEO teams. A few questions:

- 1) Does Andrew want it to be more of a meet and greet, informal hello?
- 2) Is there a topic Andrew is interested in getting their thoughts on? Like 24/7 clean energy? Or anything else related to power sector? If so, I can prep the other teams.

Best,
Verena

Dear Andrea and Allison,

I hope you are both having a great week. I am so excited it get to see both of you soon, double treat! Thank you to both of you for your help in prepping Janet McCabe and Andrew Mayock for the Climate Leadership Conference on May 25. As I spoke with both of you separately, I wanted to give you a heads up here/see if there is interest in the following:

- Janet is scheduled for speaking at 1:15-1:30
- Andrew will follow her at 1:30pm
- Right after Andrew's remarks, we have having a panel of 3 utility sector leaders to talk about their efforts decarbonize their companies, drawing on clean energy for generation, advancing equity, and promoting electrification. They are Ralph Izzo, CEO of PSEG; Calvin Butler, COO of Exelon; and Pedro Pizarro, CEO of Edison International.
- One idea I'd like to float with you is to have Janet, Andrew, and the 3 CEOs huddle in the green room beforehand in a very informal, but intentional way. I suggest this because it is rare to get these leaders all in the same room at the same time. Better, we have a private room before the start of the conference we could reserve if they want to have an informal meet and greet to hear about any issues.
 - What do you think? Would Janet and/or Andrew be up for it? If this creates vastly more work, then we can keep it very informal and have them meet in the green room for 10 minutes before the event starts.
 - Andrea, Exelon was thinking that it "might be fun" to do a very short video clip that they would record of Calvin Butler interviewing Janet McCabe. I let them know that if they wanted this option they would have to come back with a description, provide their own videographer, and a better understanding of what they wanted to do. I let them know I would have to check with EPA to see if they were available for this. I will let you know ASAP.

Please let me know if you have any questions!

Best,
Verena

TPs for Meet and Greet with Ralph Izzo (PSEG), Calvin Butler (Exelon), Pedro Pizarro (Edison International)

- Thanks for taking time to meet. We appreciate your leadership on climate and clean energy, and value the opportunity to work with you.
- This dialogue is particularly important now, as EPA works to carry out the Administrator's comprehensive power sector vision.
- As the Administrator has described, we are committed to addressing the full range of climate, public health, and environmental impacts from the power sector through a thoughtful and well-coordinated suite of actions using our core legal authorities. And we want to do this in a way that not only benefits communities affected by power plant pollution, but provides you with the regulatory certainty and clarity you need to make long-term plans and investments and to continue delivering reliable and affordable electricity.
- We have been reaching out to a broad variety of stakeholders, including entities across the industry, to really understand the moving parts and ensure the agency meets our mission in a coordinated and thoughtful way, and works with the investment and transition we are already seeing in the sector.
- And with this valuable input, we will move forward with an integrated and coordinated approach.
- EPA is working to develop a set of clean air, clean water and waste disposal efforts in 2022 and 2023 that puts this power sector vision into action.
 - As you've already seen, we have proposed to reinstate the legal, scientific, and economic underpinning for the Mercury and Air Toxics Standards for power plants and are considering whether more protective air toxics standards would be warranted;
 - We have also proposed a new "Good Neighbor" plan to reduce ozone-forming NOx pollution from power plants and industrial sources in 26 states;
 - We have also put forward a draft white paper on greenhouse gas reduction technologies for stationary combustion turbines, which will inform our ongoing work to review section 111(b) standards for new fossil fuel-fired power plants;
 - and we are working to develop Section 111(d) emission guidelines for existing fossil-fuel-fired power plants.

- Solid waste and water actions include coal combustion residual rules and supplemental effluent limitation guidelines.
- We aim to move at a quick enough pace on this full suite of EPA actions to provide a clear planning horizon to the industry, allowing plant owners to make well-informed decisions amidst a very dynamic time for the power sector in which many power companies are already making historic investments in cleaner alternatives.
- As we move forward with these actions, we want to engage with you and other stakeholders and to work with our federal partners.
- EPA will continue to move forward to set and implement environmental standards that ensure that all Americans are protected from power plant pollution that harms public health and our economy while they continue to enjoy an affordable and reliable supply of electricity. With climate change impacts becoming more severe, public support for action growing, and the clean energy transition continuing, EPA will not waver from lawfully meeting its obligation to protect people from climate and air pollution.

Hi Andrea,

What length climate talkers do you need? Attached is a short version. Let me know if you want the longer version / full suite of talkers—I'll just need to merge a couple of sets.

Thanks,
Isabel

Hi team!

Janet is speaking to the Climate Leadership Conference on Wednesday. She will also be meeting with Ralph Izzo, CEO of PSEG; Calvin Butler, COO of Exelon; and Pedro Pizarro, CEO of Edison International for a quick meet and greet prior to her remarks. I'm hopeful that you can help provide any TPs or background information that you think Janet might want to have in preparation for the conversation and the remarks. As far as the remarks, I'm planning to put a draft together this morning/early afternoon, so if it's easier to wait to see my draft and then drop in any updates please feel free to do so. I would appreciate any thoughts on the meet and greet in the meantime.

Isabel, can you send me your most recent set of climate talkers? I want to make sure I have the most recent.

Dear Andrea and Allison,

I hope you are both having a great week. I am so excited to get to see both of you soon, double treat! Thank you to both of you for your help in prepping Janet McCabe and Andrew Mayock for the Climate Leadership Conference on May 25. As I spoke with both of you separately, I wanted to give you a heads up here/see if there is interest in the following:

- Janet is scheduled for speaking at 1:15-1:30
- Andrew will follow her at 1:30pm

- Right after Andrew's remarks, we have having a panel of 3 utility sector leaders to talk about their efforts decarbonize their companies, drawing on clean energy for generation, advancing equity, and promoting electrification. They are Ralph Izzo, CEO of PSEG; Calvin Butler, COO of Exelon; and Pedro Pizarro, CEO of Edison International.
- One idea I'd like to float with you is to have Janet, Andrew, and the 3 CEOs huddle in the green room beforehand in a very informal, but intentional way. I suggest this because it is rare to get these leaders all in the same room at the same time. Better, we have a private room before the start of the conference we could reserve if they want to have an informal meet and greet to hear about any issues.
 - What do you think? Would Janet and/or Andrew be up for it? If this creates vastly more work, then we can keep it very informal and have them meet in the green room for 10 minutes before the event starts.
 - Andrea, Exelon was thinking that it "might be fun" to do a very short video clip that they would record of Calvin Butler interviewing Janet McCabe. I let them know that if they wanted this option they would have to come back with a description, provide their own videographer, and a better understanding of what they wanted to do. I let them know I would have to check with EPA to see if they were available for this. I will let you know ASAP.

Please let me know if you have any questions!

Best,
Verena
